NOTABLE WOMEN OF PITTSFORD

by Vicki Profitt

Sarah Hincher Davis Lusk - 1777-1856
Sarah Hincher was the third of William Hincher and Mehitable Moffatt Hincher’s eight children, which included seven daughters and one son. The Hinchers arrived in New York from Massachusetts in 1792. Three years later, the family moved to Charlotte, where William purchased 627 acres of land. Following his death in 1817, several acres of the Hincher land was sold to the U.S. government and it later became the site of the Charlotte-Genesee Lighthouse. Mehitable was credited with being the first white woman to cross the Genesee River. Sarah endured hardship and tragedy as a pioneer. She was left with a young son to care for upon the death of her first husband, Franklin Davis. In 1801, she married widower Stephen Lusk who had a young daughter. Sarah and Stephen had six children together. They built a good life together. Stephen farmed and owned a tannery, and Sarah raised their growing family. The Lusk home, located at 1 Mendon Center Rd., was constructed in 1822 and stands today as a testament to its fine workmanship. Stephen and Sarah were buried at the Pioneer Burying Ground, across the street from their home. Stephen and Sarah Hincher Davis Lusk’s descendants still live in the area.

Ann Agate Miles - 1797-1886
Ann Agate was born in 1797, the year before her parents, William and Mary Agate, moved to Pittsford. At four years of age, Ann was sent to District #1 school, the only school in the area at that time. It was a log cabin located at the current site of the Mile Post School at the corner of South Main St. and Mendon Rd. Since the area was still wild, it was unsafe for young Ann to travel through the woods alone. So, for a time, she boarded with the Ezra Patterson family, who lived closer to the school. Ann married Reverend Stephen Miles late in life, after the death of his first wife Polly, in 1848. Sadly, her marriage was short lived, as Reverend Miles died in 1851. Despite her loss, Ann continued living in Pittsford and was listed as a farmer in subsequent census records. Upon her death in 1886, Ann was buried beside her parents in the Pioneer Burying Ground near the school she had attended so many years before.
Ann Miles Agate saw many changes in Pittsford in her 89 years. During her lifetime, the Erie Canal was built through the village, the town was named Pittsford and the building known as the Phoenix Hotel was constructed.

Archeological digs are often associated with dry, arid lands far from home, but once in awhile, they can occur right in your backyard.

In July 2016, student Martin Banghart became interested in a pile of stones and mortar hidden amongst the weeds on Mendon Center Rd. After securing permission from the town, Martin spent his July days clearing brush and vegetation to expose the foundation of what appears to have once been a barn. Town Historian, Audrey Johnson believes this foundation might have been part of the property of Ezra Patterson, who started the town’s first library in his home, which once stood where Mendon Center Elementary School stands today.

For the remainder of the summer and into the Fall, Martin’s hard work uncovered this foundation from Pittsford’s past for all to see. Unfortunately, nature always wins in the end and weeds and vegetation have once again hidden the foundation, where it quietly waits to be discovered once again.

Lillian M. Hartman - 1864-1943
The only child of Dr. William A. Hartman and his wife, Caroline Rippey Hartman, Lillian was born in Seneca, NY. Her given name was Mary Elizabeth, but she preferred to be called Lillian, or Lillie for short.
Lillian attended Penn Yan Academy. She was an intelligent and able student with an eagerness to learn. These skills served her well and contributed to Lillian M. Hartman becoming the first woman to qualify as a licensed pharmacist before the New York State Board of Pharmacy on November 26, 1886.
Following her certification as a pharmacist, Lillian and her father operated the Hartman Drug Store in Pittsford. After Dr. Hartman’s death in 1900, Lillian and her mother, Caroline, continued operation of the drug store, now called C. & L. Hartman Drugs.
For many years, Lillian was the Pittsford correspondent for the Herald-Mail, reporting on facts and social notes pertaining to the community. She was also a photographer, snapping photos of people and places in Pittsford.

Adele Burley Summers - 1879-1960
A native of Pittsford, Adele Burley Summers was a doctor of optics who had cared for discharged patients of the Rochester State Hospital for 25 years. She was the first female oculist in the state of Kansas and Washington. Her girlhood had been spent in Kansas City where she attended Northwest Optical College and became a doctor of optics. She set up practice in Seattle, Washington at the turn of the century. After a couple of years she decided to homestead a 640 acre section in southeast Washington. She continued her practice while working on the land as well and delivered the mail on horseback. Adele and her husband, Arthur J. Summers, operated a 1,300 acre wheat ranch until they came east to Fairport in 1924. After Arthur’s death in 1935, Adele arranged with the state hospital to take in women patients who were undergoing a readjustment period before resuming life in society. She boarded about 10 such women at a time, each one staying an average of about two years. Adele was president of the board of the Baptist Home during the 1930’s and was long active in its affairs.

Claudia M. Race Day - 1908-1994
Little Claudia Marguerite Race may not have been well know when she moved to Pittsford in the mid-20 th century, but she was quite a celebrity as a child growing up in Syracuse, NY.
Claudia began playing the Irish harp at age six. Within a year, she was touring the Eastern seaboard and was hailed as a virtuoso. She became the protégée of Melville A. Clark, the creator of the first portable harp manufactured in the United States. It’s unknown how long Claudia’s career in the music industry continued. We do know she moved to Pittsford in the 1950’s, likely due to her husband’s job as assistant chief dispatcher for the New York Central Railroad. They raised two sons and a daughter together before his untimely death at age 53. Claudia Marguerite Race Day survived her husband by 31 years, passing on in 1994. She was buried beside him at Pittsford Cemetery.

Historic Pittsford’s Annual meeting took place on June 11 at Monroe’s restaurant where attendees enjoyed appetizers and a delicious buffet dinner. Highlights of the meeting included the following:

- President Peggy Brizee led the business meeting where she reported on historic issues and projects throughout the village and town.

- Vicki Profitt reported on the VoteTilla events along the canal on July 20 and 21.

- Treasurer Suzanne Shaw reported a net operating deficit of $2,300 due to major expenses for the year, including restoration of the Little House front door and one of its columns.

Throughout 2017, Historic Pittsford (HP) has been celebrating the centennial of the Woman’s Suffrage movement in New York State, culminating in our hosting the Susan B Anthony VoteTilla at the Port of Pittsford in July through a great collaboration with the Women’s Club of Pittsford. Our work resulted in Pittsford having the largest of any crowd to greet the VoteTilla.

Another all-year celebration has been the commemoration of the 200th anniversary of the ground-breaking for the Erie Canal. Historic Pittsford not only sponsored the VoteTilla, which also honored the canal, but supported the 2-day August mooring of the Lois McClure - a replica canal schooner and floating museum from Lake Champlain’s Maritime Museum. Thanks to our pre-event publicity, hundreds of residents toured the Lois McClure and got a glimpse of what it was like to live and work on the canal 100 years ago. This was an extremely successful event, bringing tangible canal history to the public, especially children.

As you know, early Historic Pittsford boards and members incorporated HP to advocate for the preservation of historic architecture. Its first act was to save from demolition the Little House (circa 1819), our headquarters. A committed group of individuals, their persistence for preservation encouraged the village and later the town to adopt the Secretary of the Interior’s criteria for preservation of historic resources. The Village has not wavered from these standards and the result is the preservation of a 19th and early 20th century critical mass of structures and the designation to the National Register of Historic Places of the majority of the village as a result.

Due to its location on the canal and adjacent to agricultural land protected through the public’s purchase of development rights from farmer owners, Schoen Place (formerly Schoen’s’ Alley) is arguably the only remaining intact village collection of historical buildings along the entire Erie Canal. As a unique visual record of the economic and agricultural history of the canal, the majority of these properties have been creatively and successfully ‘repurposed’ to adapt to changing economic times while maintaining their architectural and canal commercial integrity wherever possible, through formal application of the Secretary of the Interior’s standards and guidelines. The result is simply remarkable and makes this historic area unique in the State and so very appealing to our community and the region.

This year’s celebration of Woman Suffrage and the Erie Canal has highlighted the important advocacy role that Historic Pittsford will continue to play for the community. Of course, we need the help of all of our members and welcome your suggestions and support. The more I learn about the importance of historic preservation done well, it’s evident that Preservation is Progress.

I hope you enjoy the Fall season; take in the historic significance of the Erie Canal; and don’t forget to exercise your right to vote, especially in this centennial year of Woman Suffrage!

PRESERVATION IS PROGRESS!
